THE UNHAPPY REPUBLICANS

Just now the Republican party of Nevada is having a very unhappy time of it. The trouble seems to have its origin in an attempt to secure some one to fill the vacancy on the federal bench created by the resignation of Judge Hawley.

At one time it seemed as there was no question regarding the certainty of Farrington's appointment, and about the time every thing seemed settled Massey loomed up, or burst in, or got on some way and asked to be recognized.

This stirred up a war at once, for Farrington's friends insist that he was promised the place if he would run for Congress twice, when the running was expensive and the honor entirely empty.

It was claimed at once that Massey was not a straight party man, but had wandered out of the fold and worshiped strange gods and bowed at the feet of Bryan and free silver, and it is now considered the proper thing in the republican party to jump all over free silver and anyone who ever believed in it.

These charges against Massey stirred up his friends, and they began sharpening up their matchsticks for Farrington. There was not much in Farrington's record to back at, and they finally settled down to showing up his partner. They claimed that he was the head and shoulders of the rump party that formed in Reno two years ago on Nixon's money, and while they wanted to see it form at the time, they now think it undignified that an ex-judge should be mixed up in a scheme to put a bogus party in the field with most of the candidates being paid money to run.

Although the republican party reap the benefits of that unholy alliance, they are now using Mack's connection with it as a club to hammer Farrington, and Farrington's friends insist that such tactics are unfair, and are sending copies of Massey's silver speeches to Washington.

Sardis Summerfield wanted to pose as the man who dispensed the patronage, and being unable to land the goods, he now calls Senator Flanagan a number of unlovely names that wouldn't go through the mails, and to cap the climax it transpires that the long wait indulged in by the President is to inquire into the records of Messrs. Metcalf and Needham of California, who are now applicants for the place.

The Nevada republicans say they will give Nevada to Bryan by a large majority if the president dares to appoint any Californian. Massey's friends will knife the ticket if Farrington is appointed and vice versa.

Meanwhile, all who are asked to accept the gubernatorial nomination on the republican ticket, beg to be excused.

J. B. PRICE IS WANTED

Mrs. Caroline Goff of Fresno, California has arrived in this State looking for her son, J. B. Price, who has been away from home for over a year and who has not written to her only a few times in all that time. The aged mother is very much worried over the absence of her son and thinks he has died on the deserts of Southern Nevada and that he is probably buried with the name "unknown" on the board at the head of his grave.

About 21 claims formerly owned by H. Ramsey, John Salesberry, Still Wandell, Frank McAllister and Kunze Bros. near Furnace Creek, Funeral range, have changed hands. Presumably they now belong to the Schwab syndicate. This is considered choice copper property.

A sensational strike was made at Manhattan on the combination Group a few days since. Assays have been had showing values of $159.90, $88.95, $115.54, $588.67 and $557.87, all gold.

The Black Butte mine at Goldfield has made a large shipment of twenty-seven tons of ore, which returned a general average of $447.00 per ton.
